SAVANNAH, in GEORGIA, February 21. 1765.

LAST Sunday the Rev. Mr. GEORGE WHITEFIELD took a solemn and affectionate farewell of a very crowded auditory in our church, who appeared truly sensible of the many & great obligations this province has, from its infant state, lain under to that worthy Gentleman. Early yesterday morning he went by water to Purrysburgh, in his way to Charlestown, accompanied by some Gentlemen of this place, having before his departure, discharged all arrears due on account of the Orphan-House, placed out all the children, except two or three, who are yet too young to go abroad, had the accounts of that house audited, and put it in readiness for the reception of future officers, and students, for the intended College. And as the Orphan-House has now ceased, and it must give all generous Minds real Pleasure to know with what disinterested views that institution has been carried on, we have obtained an authentic account of the last and final audit of the whole receipts and disbursements on that account, with which we present our readers.

GEORGIA, II.

BEFORE me, the Hon. Noble Jones, Esq; Senior, Assistant Justice for the province aforesaid, appeared the Rev. Mr. George Whitefield and Thomas Dixon, of the province aforesaid, who being duly sworn, declare, that the accounts relating to the orphan-house, from folio 82 to folio 98 in this book, amounting on the debt side to three thousand three hundred and forty nine pounds fifteen shillings and ten pence sterling, and on the credit side to three thousand one hundred and thirty-two pounds sixteen shillings and one farthing, contain, to the best of their knowledge, a just and true account of all monies collected by or given to them, or any others, for the use or benefit of the said house, and that the disbursements, amounting to the sum aforesaid, have been faithfully applied to and for the use of the same.

February 6, 1765.

Signed,

GEORGE WHITEFIELD,
THOMAS DIXON.

Sworn this 9th day of Feb. 1765, before me; in justification whereof I have caused the seal of the General Court to be affixed.
Signed N. JONES.

GEORGIA, II.

BEFORE me, the Hon. Noble Jones, Esq; Senior, Assistant Justice for the province aforesaid, personally appeared James Edward Powell, and Grey Elliott, Esqrs, members of his Majesty's hon. council for this province aforesaid, who being duly sworn, declare, that they have carefully examined the accounts containing the receipts and disbursements for the use of the orphan house in the said province; and that, comparing them with the several vouchers, they find the same not only just and true in every respect, but kept in such a clear and regular manner as does honour to the managers of that house; and that, on the careful examination of the several former audits, it appears that the sum of two thousand and sixty-four pounds five shillings and ten pence, has at several times been given by the Rev. Mr. Whitefield, for the use of the said house; and that in the whole the sum of twelve thousand eight hundred and fifty-five pounds five shillings and four pence three farthings, sterling has been laid out for the said house since 7th January 1738-9, to this day: Also that it does not appear that any charge has ever been made by the said Rev. Mr. Whitefield, either for travelling charges, or any other expences whatever; and that no charge of salary has been made for any person whatever employed or concerned in the management of the said house.

Signed,

JAMES EDWARD POWELL,
GREY ELLIOTT.

To the Publishers of the BOSTON EVENING-POST.
Si populus vult decepti decipiat.

THE writers and publishers of public news, I think, have always assum'd a liberty of animadverting on the faults and follies of mankind in general in their weekly labors; even those in stations of power and dignity not escaping the freedom of their censures. The plain inference from which is this,---That those retailers of public intelligence and speculation, should keep themselves free from those weaknesses, which they think they have a right to expose in others.

When news-writers happen to publish silly or scandalous matters, they should meekly submit to the reflections they are prone so liberally to pass upon others; nay, they should be ready to publish their own inadvertences, (to call them no worse) in their respective papers: This would indeed be a convincing proof to the world of that impartiality which the publishers so often boast of in their weekly performances.

When there is a scarcity of news, the publishers have been wont to supply the want of intelligence, with what is usually called speculation. This, it must be confess'd, is a laudable custom. But then, those speculations ought to be such as tend to convey some useful knowledge to the world; such as are adapted to inspire men with generous and benevolent sentiments; to correct their irregular passions, and, in general to reform their manners.

If these observations are allowed to be just, what an injudicious choice of speculation is that publish'd in the Boston Evening-Post of the 1st instant? Can any person capable of exercising his reason, once imagine, that the surprising account of those spectres called Vampyres, has any possible tendency to promote the forementioned very worthy purposes? nay, is it not rather plainly calculated, to frighten old women and children, to amuse the ignorant and superstitious, and to promote deism and infidelity in the world? Most certainly, neither the publishers themselves, nor any sober man and good christian, can believe there is one word of truth, in all that long, surprising, and terrific account exhibited in the aforesaid paper. Besides, how ridiculous as well as impious must it be, to suppose that the Supreme Being would commit the keys of death to infernal spirits and demons, and suffer them to drag dead bodies of men from their graves, and make them instruments to destroy the living? For my own part, I can as soon give credence to the most fabulous stories of witches and spirits, of demons and goblins talking by moon-light; or believe the whole phenomena of the Salem witchcraft; the incubusses, the succubusses, and wonders of the invisible world: Or the scene of witchcraft open'd at Woodstock, a few years ago, when 132 stones of different sizes, were said to be thrown into a room (close shut up) by the agency of infernal spirits;---I say, I can as soon give credit to all this, as to the surprising account of the sanguinary vampyres.

The remarks upon these incredible stories, may not be concluded without observing, that they are wickedly and prophaneely pretended to be supported and confirmed by sundry texts of sacred scripture: which, if the reader will be at the pains to examine, he will find no more to the purpose, than the story of the witch of Endor, or that of Balaam's Ass;---or in the account of the tour which the devil made on the unenlightened part of the globe.

The space of seven continued nights he rode,

If the first broachers of the story under consideration, instead of prostituting those texts of canonical scripture, to support their fiction, they refer'd their readers to a story in the apocrypha, it had been nearer the point, and something more to their purpose. The story may be read by the curious, in the 6th 7th and 8th chapters of the book of Tobit.

JOHN BALL.

By His EXCELLENCY
FRANCIS BERNARD, Esq;
Captain-General and Governor in Chief, in and over
His Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts-Bay, in New-England, and Vice-Admiral of the same.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS A Representation hath been made to Me by the Honorable JOHN Temple, Esq; the Surveyor-General of his Majesty's Customs for the Northern District of America, That the Collector of the Customs for the Port of Newport suspecting that — Dogget, Master of the Sloop Polly owned by Mr. Job Smith of Taunton, lately entered from Surinam, had reported only a Part of her Cargo, did thereupon, accompanied by Capt. Charles Antrobis, of his Majesty's Ship Maidstone, proceed to Taunton River in the County of Bristol, within the Province of the Massachusetts-Bay, where the said Sloop then lay; and together, went on board the said Sloop, and found that she was loaded with double the Quantity of Molasses reported as aforesaid; and that thereupon the said Collector seized the Overplus, and also seized the Vessel, both, as forfeited; and then left on board the said Sloop Mr. Lechmere, the Searcher of the Customs for the Port of Newport, and the said Collector's own Servant, in order to see the Delivery of the said Cargo; but that the said Searcher and the Servant aforesaid, having Occasion to go ashore to refresh themselves, the Boat they went ashore in, was after their Landing, taken away, and they could get no other Boat to go aboard of the said Sloop, she then lying within One hundred Yards of the Shore, and as soon as it became dark the Vessel was surrounded by Boats, into which the whole Cargo was delivered by at least Forty Persons in Disguise, with their Faces blacked, and the said Searcher and the Servant aforesaid threatened with ill Usage, if they made any Attempts to prevent what was doing; and that the said Sloop being thus unloaded was afterwards stripped, and she was at a full Tide ran high up on the shore and scuttled. And that a Boat and Crew sent up the River by the Officers of the Customs to assist in navigating the Vessel was obliged to put back, because that about one hundred People were there ready to oppose them:

And Whereas it is of great Importance to the Peace and Order of this Government, and to the carrying into Execution within the same the several Acts of Parliament for regulating the Plantation Trade, that such high-handed Offenders should be brought to speedy and condign Punishment:

I HAVE thought fit, with the Advice of his Majesty's Council, to issue this Proclamation, hereby requiring all Justices of the Peace, all Sheriffs and their Deputies, and all Civil Officers within the said Province, to use their utmost Endeavours for discovering, seizing and bringing to Justice, the several Offenders aforesaid, or any of them; and also to support and maintain the Officers of the Customs in the Recovery of the said Vessel and Goods, and in all Matters relative thereto, in the due Execution of their Office.

And I do hereby also command the Colonels, or Chief Officers, of the several Regiments of Militia in the County of Bristol, upon Application made to them by any of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace, or the Sheriff of the said County, for Aid and Support in securing and apprehending any of the Offenders aforesaid, to raise and march such Part of their respective Regiments, as they shall judge necessary for that Purpose.

And I hereby promise a Reward of FIFTY POUNDS, to be paid out of the Public Treasury, to any Person or Persons who shall inform against or discover any one or more concerned in these riotous and unlawful Proceedings, so that he or they shall be convicted. And if the Informer shall have been an Accomplice, or any ways engaged in the Offence aforesaid, he shall receive his Majesty's Pardon and be also intitled to the Reward above-mentioned upon Conviction of the Party informed against as aforesaid.

Letters from Paris mention, that Mons. de Bussy, who about two years ago gained an immense sum by stock-jobbing in England, has had frequent conferences with Mr. Wilkes, and was to set out on an early visit to London, with a view of investing a very large property in the British funds.

We are informed sailing orders were on thursday night dispatched to Portsmouth, for three sail of the line to proceed immediately to join Sir William Burnaby, on the West-India station.

Last night the Coroner's inquest sat on the body of the unfortunate Mr. Chaworth, that was killed in the duel with Lord Baron, but had not brought in a verdict when this paper went to press. We are assured he was sensible to the last, had his will made before he died; and on sunday, at noon, an express was sent to his mother in Nottinghamshire, to inform her of the melancholy accident that had happened.

Commissions have last week been received to engage some skilful artificers in the gunmaking branch, to embark for Quebec, where, we are informed, a very extensive manufacture of gun-barrels, &c. is going to be established.

Mr. Wilkes is said to have announced Mr. Churchill's death to a friend here in town in the following laconick epistle: "Dear Bob, d—d hard times!—Churchill is dead; Lloyd in the Fleet; and Wilkes little better than a transport for life.—D—d hard times indeed!"

We are informed that a certain great personage has strongly recommended an act of grace to be passed this session, for the relief of the great number of persons now confined for debt in the several goals.

All reports of an intended embarkation of troops and artillery, for the better security of Jamaica, are groundless; that island, being protected by a strong squadron and three regiments of foot.

The last advices from West Florida mention, that they have already made some successful essays in the cultivation of the Jamaica sugarcane, and with care, it was not doubted, but plantations might, in time, be brought to as much perfection in that province as those of the French at Cayenne.

We hear her Royal Highness Princess Caroline Matilda has for some days past sat for her picture in miniature, to an eminent artist, which, after being set in jewels of great value, is intended to be sent over as a present to the Prince of Denmark.

The following extraordinary letter was sent me and is informed, to the Minor part of the members of parliament.

Albermarle-street, Jan. 17. 1765.

Dear Sir,

"You need not come to town this week—This is a secret to be broached on saturday—Mr. P— will be able to ride the great horse on the 19th— We had a numerous meeting on the 27th—97 as I live—I cannot tell you the motion—but no matter for that, liberty is the word; and property will, I hope, soon follow, or we shall be confoundedly bit— C—s—t—d is so tired of being nothing, that I believe he would now rejoice to be anything; however, upon this subject he is tight as a drum—We have on our side all who wish well to themselves, whatever they do to their country—all who rely on the lenity of the present administration for keeping the places they have, and on the gratitude of any future one, to give them more—and all who know nothing of the matter in dispute—Can you doubt, after this, of having a majority—Pray try to spirit up ———, and ———, and ———, to make one of the victorious 230. Our triumph of all days in the year, will be on that day of downfall to the Stuarts, King Charles's Martyrdom—This is the 65th letter I have written: excuse haste, blunders, and any thing, but my saying how much I am &c."

We hear that a certain great commoner, who is very lately become a man of fortune, being much hurt at the title of grand Pensioner, which certain people injuriously bestow upon him, has declared his fixed resolution to resign his pension before he makes his appearance in a certain great assembly.—A noble example! but indeed no more than might reasonably be expected from a person of his own disinterestedness.

It is said that the minority, in expectation of the above event, will defer their motion with regard to general warrants.

A treaty of marriage is on foot, and will speedily be completed, between his grace the Duke of Gordon and lady Anne Stuart, third daughter of the Right Hon. the Earl of Bute.

By the Brig Success, William Marshall, master, from the Havanna, we learn, that the latter end of February, the snow Granville, the Florida packet, Capt. Collet, bound from Pensacola to Augustine, drove ashore on the dry Tortugas, from whence, in his barge, the captain came to the Havanna, where he got a schooner and brought the remainder of the people off. Andrews, of New-Jersey, of Effects to the Value of $0 Dollars; and as a Proof of his Audacity, he had on a Suit of Capt. Andrews's Clothes when he was taken.
